THE EARNED INCOME TAX CREDIT, THE CHILD TAX CREDIT, AND THE CHILD AND DEPENDENT CARE CREDIT

The Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), the Child Tax Credit (CTC), and the Child and Dependent Care Credit are federally funded anti-poverty initiatives that help low-income individuals and families meet their basic needs. Households in poverty and those surviving on meager budgets can significantly benefit from these opportunities to increase their net income.

CLAIM YOUR CREDIT!

The Earned Income Tax Credit

Since its creation in 1975, the federal Earned Income Tax Credit has grown into the largest, federally funded, means-tested cash assistance program in the country. The EITC now brings more children out of poverty than any other government program. Working individuals and families who earn low or moderate incomes may be eligible to receive a rebate of all federal income taxes deducted from paychecks the previous year. Outreach programs by the IRS and other organizations have improved awareness of the program, but millions of EITC dollars still go unclaimed each year. In 2003, over 2 million Texans claimed over $4 billion through the Earned Income Tax Credit. However, the IRS estimates that more than 580,000 eligible Texans did not claim this credit and lost out on nearly $1.2 billion dollars.

Eligibility

The following taxpayers filing in 2006 are eligible to claim the EITC:

- Workers raising one “qualifying child” (see below) with a 2005 family income of less than $31,030 (or $33,030 for married couples) are eligible for a credit up to $2,662;

- Workers raising two or more qualifying children with a 2005 family income less than $35,263 (or $37,263 for married couples) are eligible for a credit up to $4,400; and
- Workers without a qualifying child who are between the ages of 25 and 64 on December 31, 2005, with a 2005 income below $11,750 (or $13,750 for married couples) are eligible for a credit up to $399.

In addition, the person claiming the credit must have a valid Social Security Number (SSN) that allows them to work, as well as a SSN for their spouse (if filing a joint return).

Who is a “Qualifying Child” for the EITC?

- Sons, daughters, stepchildren, grandchildren and adopted children
- Brothers, sisters, stepbrothers, or stepsisters — as well as descendants of such relatives
- Foster children who are placed with the worker by an authorized government or private placement agency

“Qualifying children” must live with the worker for more than half of the year. They must be under age 19, or under age 24 if they are full-time students. Children of any age who have total and permanent disabilities also may be qualifying children. Valid Social Security numbers are required for qualifying children born before December 31, 2005.

Free Tax Filing Assistance

Low and moderate-income individuals and families are strongly encouraged to take advantage of free tax filing assistance. IRS data indicate that 72 percent of Texans filing for the EITC use commercial tax filing services. These services charge fees for tax preparation, electronic filing, and fees on “refund anticipation loans” (RALs) that can amount to as much as half of a taxpayer's total refund. To find information about free tax filing assistance:

Available to qualifying low- and moderate-income taxpayers, Free File offers online tax preparation and electronic filing through a partnership between the IRS and a group of tax preparation companies.

How do you get the EITC?

- Workers raising a “qualifying child” in their home in 2005 must file either Form 1040 or 1040A and must fill out and attach Schedule EIC. Workers with children cannot get the EIC if they file Form 1040EZ or do not attach Schedule EIC. Married workers must file a joint return to get the EIC.
- Workers who were not raising a “qualifying child” in their home in 2005 can file any tax form — including the 1040EZ. These workers write “EIC” (or the dollar amount of their credit) on the Earned Income Credit line on the tax form. They do not file Schedule EIC.
- A correct name and Social Security number must be provided for every person listed on the tax return and Schedule EIC. If this information is incorrect or missing, the IRS will delay the refund.
- Workers don't have to calculate their own EITC; if they choose, the IRS will do it for them!

Advance EITC Payments

Most workers receive their Earned Income Tax Credit as a traditional, single payment when they file their federal income tax returns. Workers also have the option to receive advance EITC payments. Under this option, the worker receives a portion of the credit in each paycheck. For example, a worker does not have to wait until 2007 to receive her EITC for income earned in 2006. The worker can receive the credit over the course of 2006 in regular installments in each paycheck. For low and moderate-income families, receiving a regular EITC payment can help them to pay rent, buy groceries, and meet other monthly expenses.

Workers who expect to qualify for advance EITC must expect:

- To have at least one qualifying child; and
- A 2006 income of less than $32,000 (or $34,000 for married couples).

Workers are ineligible for this credit if their only income is from self-employment, they get paid on a daily basis, or no Social Security and Medicare taxes are withheld from their pay.

Under federal law, all employers must provide advance EITC payments to eligible employees. (Employers are not, however, required to guarantee employees' eligibility.). To get the Advance EIC eligible workers fill out Form W-5, the “Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate,” and give it to their employer. The W-5 is available from employers, by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM, or by downloading it from the IRS website at: www.irs.gov/formspubs.

The Child Tax Credit

Many families who claim the EITC also are eligible for an additional tax credit—the Child Tax Credit (CTC). The Child Tax Credit is a federal tax credit for families who pay income tax and have one or more children under age 17. The CTC is intended to help working families with children improve their living conditions and enhance their economic well-being.

Eligibility

Taxpayers are eligible for the CTC if they have a “qualifying child” and a 2005 taxable earned income over $11,000. The person claiming the credit must have either a valid Social Security or Taxpayer Identification Number.

Who is a “Qualifying Child” for the CTC?

- Sons, daughters, stepchildren, grandchildren and adopted children
- Brothers, sisters, stepbrothers, or stepsisters — as well as descendants of such relatives
- Foster children who are placed with the worker by an authorized government or private placement agency

A child claimed for the CTC must be under age 17 at the end of 2005. The child must live with the worker for more than half of the year in the U.S. and must be either a citizen or a resident alien. The child must have either a valid Social Security number or an Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN).

How does the CTC work?

Eligible families can get up to $1,000 for each qualifying child under age 17 claimed on their tax return. (For example, a parent with two such children can claim a CTC of up to $2,000 — 2 children x $1,000.) The CTC first is used to reduce or eliminate a family’s income tax liability. Families may be able to get all or part of any remaining CTC as a refund.

How do families get the CTC?

Step 1: File a federal income tax return — Form 1040 or 1040A, but not 1040EZ. The CTC is first used to reduce or eliminate any income tax a tax filer owes. If any of the CTC is remaining after the income tax has been eliminated (i.e., if the family’s income tax was less than its maximum CTC), the tax filer moves on to the next step in the process by filing Form 8812.

Step 2: File Form 8812, “Additional Child Tax Credit.” This form is used to find out if the family qualifies for a CTC refund and, if so, the amount of the refund. This form must be attached to the tax return for a family to receive the CTC refund.

Child and Dependent Care Credit

Affording quality child care is a significant problem for many low- and moderate-income families. The Child and Dependent Care Credit can considerably offset dependent care expenses for working families who pay federal income tax. The credit is available to families who, in order to work or to look for work, have to pay for child care for dependents under age 13. The credit is also available to families who pay for care of a spouse or dependent of any age who is physically or mentally incapable of self-care.

Depending on household income, the credit for 2005 can be as much as $2,000 for one qualifying child or dependent, and as much as $6,000 for two or more children or dependents.

Unlike the EITC and CTC, this credit is “non-refundable,” which means it is used to reduce or eliminate income tax owed, but workers are not issued a true refund for this credit as they may be for the EITC and CTC. However, the Child and Dependent Care Credit can result in a larger refund of over-withheld income tax.

Eligibility

Families that paid for child care, or care for a disabled spouse or dependent family member over 13, and paid federal income taxes in 2005 can receive this credit. The person claiming the credit must have either a valid Social Security or Taxpayer Identification Number.

- Children in child care must be under the age of 13, have lived in the household in 2005, and be claimed as a dependent on the taxpayer’s 2005 tax return.
- Dependents who received care must have lived in the household in 2005, be physically or mentally incapable of self-care, and have been claimed as a dependent on the 2005 tax return.
- Children and Dependents must be either U.S. citizens or legal immigrants and have a valid Social Security or Taxpayer Identification Number.

For more information, see the IRS' Child and Dependent Care Credit, Tax Tip 2005-47, March 8, 2005, at <http://www.irs.gov/newsroom/article/0..id=106189,00.html>.

Important points for immigrants

- Applying for these tax credits will not affect the person's immigration status or the immigration status of any family members.
- Applying for these tax credits will not affect an immigrant's ability to become a legal permanent resident ("green card" holder), naturalize as a U.S. citizen, or sponsor relatives to enter the country.
- An immigrant who receives these tax credits will not be considered a "public charge." The EITC, the CTC, and the Child and Dependent Care Credit are earned benefits, not public assistance. Receiving these benefits is not considered evidence of government dependency.
- "Sponsored" immigrants who receive these tax credits do not have to worry that their sponsor will be asked to repay these benefits.¹

For more information about immigrants' eligibility for these tax credits, contact the National Immigration Law Center at 213-639-3900 or www.nilc.org.

Families Can Claim All Three Tax Credits

A family may be eligible for all three credits—the Earned Income Tax Credit, the Child Tax Credit, and the Child and Dependent Care Credit. Claiming all three credits qualifies the participant for even more money from the IRS.

Impact on Other Public Benefits

For families that are receiving federal benefits, it is important to understand how the refundable tax credits might affect their continued eligibility for those programs.

The three tax credits are not counted as income when determining eligibility for any federal program benefits, such as TANF, Medicaid, Food Stamps, SSI, or public housing. This means that when a worker who uses (or whose family member uses) a federal benefit receives a tax credit and spends the money immediately, the receipt of the credit will have no effect that person's eligibility for public benefits.

However, when a worker wants to save the tax credit in a savings or checking account, these savings may in some cases affect a person's eligibility to receive public benefits. This is because a person's cash and savings—known as "assets" or "resources"—are considered when determining that person's eligibility for certain public benefits.

Because in many cases benefits will not be affected, workers whose families use public benefits should not automatically be discouraged from claiming the EITC or other tax credits. A description of the rules related to tax credits and public benefits follows.

Assets/Resources

Whether a tax credit is counted as a resource or asset varies by type of tax credit, and also from program to program. The amount of resources a person may have and still be eligible for benefits also varies by program; therefore receipt of either the EITC or CTC could make a person ineligible for certain benefits, but not others. The table below shows how credits are treated as assets/resources in several programs.

Program	EITC	Child Tax Credit
Texas Medicaid, Food Stamps, TANF, and CHIP	1) If the household is not already receiving the public benefit when they receive the EITC lump-sum payment, the EITC payment is not counted as a resource the month of receipt, or in the following month. However, starting in the third month after the EITC payment is received, any unspent EITC funds would be counted as a resource, which could cause some families to lose eligibility for the benefit at that point. 2) If the household is already receiving the benefit when they receive the EITC payment, the EITC payment is not counted as a resource the month of receipt, or in the following 11 months for those programs the household currently receives. Exception: If the household loses eligibility for the benefits for more than 30 days during the 12 months described above, any unspent portion of the EITC payment will be counted as a resource when the household re-enrolls.	Child Tax Credit is not counted as a resource the month of receipt, or in the following month.
SSI	EITC is not counted as a resource for nine months following the month of receipt. (Starting in the 10th month after the EITC payment is received, any unspent EITC funds would be counted as a resource.)	CTC is not counted as a resource for nine months following the month of receipt. (Starting in the 10th month after the EITC payment is received, any unspent EITC funds would be counted as a resource.)
Public housing	Federally subsidized housing programs do not have resource limits. However, household income does affect eligibility for public housing and the amount of rental assistance a household receives, and interest earned on resources is counted towards household income. If a household's resources exceed $5,000, the higher of the following is counted towards the household's income: (a) the actual interest or other income earned on the resources or (b) the amount of resources multiplied by the current passbook savings rate. In any event, the actual impact of a household's resources on the amount of rental assistance it receives is extremely modest.
Veterans' Benefits	The EITC does count as a resource, but the VA's resource limit is so high ($80,000, not counting home and motor vehicle), that saving EITC refunds is not likely to affect eligibility.
Reminder: EITC or CTC tax credit payments are treated differently from tax refund checks of over-withheld income tax. Simple withholding refunds are always subject to being counted as an asset/resource.

Example:

A household is already receiving Food Stamps in March 2006. On March 15, 2006, the household receives an EITC payment. The EITC payment does not count as a resource for March or the next 11 months. If the household saves the funds for the entire 12 months, those funds will be counted as a resource at the next recertification for Food Stamps after the 12 months expire. At this point, if the household's total assets including the saved EITC exceed the amount allowed for Food Stamps recipients, then the household would lose its eligibility for these benefits.

Exception: If the family deposits its EITC refund in an Individual Development Account these savings are not counted as a resource when determining eligibility for any benefit. Read on for information about IDAs.

In summary:

- If a worker spends his/her tax credit(s), then receipt of the credit will not affect that person's eligibility for public benefits.
- Persons who save their tax credit(s) need to be aware that these savings could potentially affect their family's eligibility for certain public benefits, depending on the total amount of resources they have.
- For families wishing to save money (for example, saving for a home down payment) the IDA offers a way to pursue that goal without losing critical benefits like TANF, Medicaid, CHIP, or Food Stamps.
