² The inadequate infrastructure index takes into account the average percentage of schools that have “good” conditions when it comes to infrastructure (furniture, equipment, basics) needed for academic activities of students. Three elements are taken into account: classrooms, libraries and computer centers. Infrastructure is labeled as good based on the director’s judgment that their facilities and resources are sufficient and in good condition. Inadequate infrastructure would be those schools that do not fall into the above definition. See page 258 of Mexico Kids Count report.
